

New Educational Officers Are Elected

Mansfield See Political Honey Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says this election year for his party may be "the time for honey rather than vinegar." As an example, he had a few words of praise for President Nixon.

"He's done a pretty good job, I think, in the first year, all things considered. At least he's got us going the other way in Vietnam, with troops coming out, not fast enough, but coming out."

Mansfield said he hopes the Democratic Congress can cooperate with the Republican administration in the session ahead.

"There are ways and ways to operate in an election year," said the tanned Montana senator, just back from a vacation at a Florida retreat. "Maybe this is the time for honey rather than vinegar."

Mansfield's comments come, however, as Senate Democrats prepare to battle President Nixon on a matter they see as a possible major issue in the 1970 elections — the question of priorities.

The majority leader said the first action of the new session will deal with the $10.7 billion appropriations bill which Nixon has promised to veto because it contains $2.2 billion more than the administration wants for education and health programs.

Some Democrats, Mansfield said, believe a Nixon veto would be helpful politically to them during the coming campaign, because of the issue involved.

Thirty-five senators, 25 of them Democrats, have terms expiring with the current Congress. Mansfield is one of them.

Meanwhile, Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton, the Republican national chairman, said Monday the Democrats are dropping Vietnam policy as a 1970 issue because they know "an overwhelming number of Americans support President Nixon in his search for peace."

He said the Democrats therefore are turning to the problem of crime and of inflation as campaign items. But Morton claimed those issues for the Republicans.

"To put it bluntly—we got there first," said Morton. "The American public can see that the Nixon administration recognizes both areas as serious problems and is doing everything within its power to combat them."

Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma, the Democratic national chairman, has announced plans for a party-sponsored conference early this year, seeking action to deal with crime.

Crime legislation is near the top of the agenda for the new Senate session. Mansfield said bills dealing with organized crime and narcotics control are among the first due for action.

of conflict . . . While the news media could do more toward lessening the tensions that breed violence, the task force said, the press is sometimes overly blamed for the violence itself.

"It is undoubtedly true," the report said, "that some groups have learned to use violence and the press to exploit their goals. They have learned that the media generally can be counted on to give violent behavior a prominent role in the day's news."

"The result is that when they seek publicity for their grievances, conflict and possibly violence may be one of the techniques used in the fairly certain knowledge that the press will make sure the whole world is watching."

"Although there is truth in this charge, it is probably a good deal less than seems to be popularly believed. First, violence is not necessary to gain media attention. In the case of television particularly, any kind of physical action or dramatization of conflict will usually suffice."

"Second, groups who engage in violence are apt to have their message lost because of the media tendency to focus on the violence to the exclusion of the message."

Third, the use of violence, as is usually the case in university confrontations, is a political instrument used to provoke the police and thereby radicalize large numbers of students who are sympathetic to new left goals, but ordinarily reject new left tactics.

Figures and Facts About Violence

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are some of the main points in the report by the National Violence Commission's task force on mass media and violence:

—Too many news organizations "stimulate, dissatisfy, and arouse anxiety only to fall silent or limit themselves to irrelevant clichés when thoughtful solutions are required."

—News media have been over-sensitive to outside criticism.

—"The media have contributed to the widespread use of confrontation as an instrument of social change by their failure to report adequately the conditions underlying current protest, by the proposals for solution of pressing social problems and by their action-oriented coverage of conflict."

—"News media can help reduce violence by serving as a conduit for intergroup communication and exchange of ideas."

—"Violence has been used by some groups to gain publicity for their grievances but is not necessary to win media attention today, and groups who engage in violence are apt to have their message lost."

—"The press should provide more interpretive reporting on social problems and display fairly and clearly opinions, analyses and solutions from a wide variety of people."

Agnew Is Heckled in Australia

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF Associated Press Writer

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — About 100 antiwar demonstrators heckled U.S. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as he laid a wreath today at Australia's war memorial, and protest groups planned a larger demonstration Wednesday.

Five of the hecklers—four young men and a woman—were arrested.

As Agnew and his wife emerged from the memorial, they waved to the crowd of 300 to 400, and the crowd responded with an evenly divided mixture of applause and boos.

Later, when Agnew left his hotel for dinner with Prime Minister John Gorton, about two dozen protesters flanked by as many policemen shouted at him and waved North Vietnamese flags.

At the prime minister's, a counter demonstration was under way. Two dozen persons carried signs saying "Croats of Canberra Welcome You," "Prevent Communist Aggression" and "We Support American Australian Friendship." As Agnew's motorcade pulled up, the small group applauded.

Antiwar protest groups were reported bringing in busloads of demonstrators from Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide to demonstrate Wednesday at Parliament House while Agnew attends a Cabinet luncheon there.

Prime Minister John Gorton greeted the vice president and his wife today on their arrival from Bali for the next to last stop of their 11-nation Asian tour. They go to New Zealand Thursday.

He said the number of North Vietnamese troops in the delta had increased by six times since then and now makes up 30 per cent of the total enemy force.

Sources said that sizable North Vietnamese units have been moved into the delta because the Viet Cong has been unable to recruit southerners. Another reason advanced was what sources described as a "desperate effort" to try to stop government gains in pacification.

Sources declined to disclose the total enemy strength in the delta. They estimated there are 230,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops "in and near" South Vietnam, including enemy troops in Cambodia, Laos and the Demilitarized Zone.

On the political front, President Nguyen Van Thieu denounced South Vietnamese who seek a coalition government or neutrality for the country.

During the past two months, Thieu has stepped up his attacks against a group of political figures who oppose his regime and appear to him to be moving toward accommodation with the Viet Cong.

Thieu mentioned no names in his speech, but he obviously was referring in part to three members of the House of Representatives he has accused of Communist activities. Thieu is seeking to have their immunity removed so they can be prosecuted, but no action is likely to be taken because the National Assembly is in a three-month recess.

Plane Issue to Test Nixon's Pledge

By BOB HORTON AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The F111's persistent technical problems apparently will test President Nixon's 1968 campaign pledge to make the plane "into one of the foundations of our national security."

The then-candidate's comment was recalled over the weekend when Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird raised the possibility that future F111 production may be canceled.

Fifteen F111's have crashed, the latest in December, from reasons ranging from construction flaws to pilot error.

The Air Force said Monday the December accident that killed two crewmen resulted from faulty steel, which caused a wing to break off near the fuselage.

It was Nov. 1, 1968, the eve of the presidential election, when Nixon publicly endorsed the F111 program while campaigning in Texas where the General Dynamics Company builds the plane.

The new plane was a continuing problem for the Democrats facing accusations that former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara overrode the military by awarding the multimillion-dollar contract to General Dynamics rather than Boeing of Wood to plague the F111 since Nixon's campaign statement, prompting Laird to note Sunday in a televised interview that it is becoming a Republican problem.

"Since I have been Secretary of Defense, I have not had to face up to this issue," Laird said. "But I am having to face up to it in 1971 because then is the time for decision as to whether we will go forward with a fourth wing or whether we will cancel the program after the fourth wing or before the fourth wing."

The Air Force would like to buy more than 600 F111's but has been given the money in recent years to pay for 491.

Aldes say Laird is likely to depend solely on the Air Force's recommendation on whether to continue future F111 production.

The Air Force reported it does not know yet whether the steel defect which caused the December accident is an isolated problem or affects the entire fleet. All operational F111's have been grounded pending inspection.

Senator John McClellan, D-Ark., long a critic of the F111 program, has served notice to Laird he plans to resume his congressional investigation of the plane.

McClellan said last week that if the latest problem affects all F111's then the Pentagon should cancel the program instead of making further heavy expenditures for repairs.

The Air Force says that at this point it has no estimate on how much it might cost to remedy the steel flaw should the defect be found in both F111's.

Inmates at Cummins Prison Are Protesting

CUMMINS PRISON FARM, Ark. (AP) — Inmates at Cummins Prison Farm have conducted two protests since early Saturday of conditions at the prison, Correction Commissioner C. Robert Sarver said Monday night.

Sarver said the protests were nonviolent and began when a trusty guard fired a shotgun into the ceiling of a barracks to quell a disturbance.

Sarver said a total of 238 inmates had participated in the protests and that 40 inmates were continuing a demonstration Monday night. The meritorious and statutory good time of the 40 have been revoked, he said.

The commissioner said the protests included chanting, clapping hands and refusals to work, eat and participate in institutional programs.

Sarver said one inmate, Willie Morehead, was struck by fragments in the right hand and right thigh when the trusty fired his shotgun, but wasn't injured seriously. The commissioner said the fragments probably were from ductwork in the ceiling.

He said the disturbance amounted to no more than yelling and shouting by inmates who were angered when another prisoner turned off the barracks television set before the finish of a late movie.

"We've talked with spokesmen for the protesters at some considerable length," Sarver said. "We've determined that the protests resulted from what appears to be widespread discontent among the inmates with the conditions at the institution — inadequacy of clothing, food, medical services, competent security and shelter and a total lack of education, treatment and rehabilitation services."

Sarver said both Negroes and whites were involved in the protests.

The commissioner said the first protest began with about 174 inmates and most of them ended the demonstration after talking with prison authorities.

He said 64 inmates were involved in the second protest and some of each group have continued to demonstrate.

In Athens, an official spokesman said the Greek Air Force Academy is training 110 Libyans to fly American F5 jet fighters which the royalist Libyan regime ordered from the United States. Ten of the planes have been delivered, and three are reported to have crashed.

France agreed last week to sell 50 of its Mirage jet fighters to the new leftist Libyan military regime, and Israel expressed fear that the planes eventually would be used against it.

Hendrix Would Delay the Special Session

CAMDEN, Ark. (AP) — State Sen. Olen Hendrix of Prescott urged Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller Monday night to delay calling a special session of the legislature until after the new fiscal year begins July 1.

Hendrix said that at that time raises for state employees under the classification and compensation plan would go into effect and the governor would have a better idea at that time where salaries are low.

Rockefeller has said he will call a special session for the last week of February. Although he has said he will ask the legislature for $35 million in new tax revenues, he has said he would call the session if for no reason other than to improve state employee salaries.

Hendrix, in an interview with El Dorado radio station KELD, said the legislature meeting after this fiscal year expires could apply a surplus of $6 to $7 million that he said will have accrued by that time to raise salaries and help state agencies, such as the Revenue and Welfare Departments, out of financial problems.

Hendrix said he had talked to Rockefeller about 60 days ago about his idea. He said the governor wasn't aware at that time of a surplus and that he hasn't heard from Rockefeller since.

The senator said he believed Rockefeller would delay the session and "would do well" by waiting until after July 1. The legislature would be more receptive to tax increases after this fiscal year, Hendrix said.

Hendrix was in Camden to at-field, chairman of the committee, when the hearings opened.

But the California Democrat stated bluntly he takes little stock in objections to nuclear power plants. The business of his committee, Hollifield said, "is to encourage development of nuclear electric generating plants."

And witnesses, from Presidential Science Advisor Dr. Lee A. DuBridge and Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg on down, did not disappoint him.

Both acknowledged nuclear generation has drawbacks, but contended man has the technological know-how to overcome them.

Thermal pollution, common to conventional as well as nuclear generating facilities, can be reduced, according to the testimony, by cooling waste water in ponds or towers before returning it to the river, lake or ocean from which it was taken.

Another solution is use of a dry cooling tower, which circulates water through a reactor much in the manner of an automobile radiator.

SHOWBEAT

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — "Anne of the Thousand Days" is a good film. Much of its success is because of its young girl star, Genevieve Bujold, of the Big Brown Eyes. Genevieve Bujold is her official name. A French-Canadian, her last name is pronounced, surprisingly, Bujold, with every consonant heard from. Although she now speaks English as often as French, there is still just a hint of an accent, because French was her first language.

In fact, her first acting was in French, on the Montreal stage. She made a film in France and director George Schaefer saw it and said to himself, "Gee, I'd like her for Joan of Arc—if she could only speak English." He checked and found out the facts of Genevieve's life and she first attracted U.S. attention in his televised story of the Maid of Orleans.

Despite all the attention lavished on her now—she is virtually certain to get an Academy Award nomination and the Oscar itself would be no surprise—she remains, so far, a very down-to-earth young woman.

She is rarer-thin, dresses well, talks easily, likes people—but men more than women.

"I came to like Anne after I played her," she says. "I do not particularly like women, as a rule, but I think if Anne were alive, we could be friends."

Men automatically like her. Her wonderful eyes, a rare golden brown, look directly at her conversational partner. She has a knack of turning an acquaintance into a champion quickly. It is easy to understand her playing a king's lady.

She still lives in Montreal with her husband, Paul Almond. He is English-Canadian, a director. They lived, for awhile, in Toronto but she didn't like it.

"It is not alive enough," she says, "to satisfy my French-Canadian personality. I like cities, as well as people, that are alive and vibrant."

She was educated in a convent but, she says without elaboration that she wouldn't send any daughter of hers to a convent. So far, the Almonds have one child, a 1½-year-old son named Matthew.

Acting came naturally, even in the convent. After her early stage work in Montreal came a tour of France and Russia with a

"WHY ME?" HE SAYS

Dear Helen: I am 17 and can't seem to keep a girl friend. I don't have all those things the commercials warn against. I try not to be boring. I spend money on them. We have great times, and then wham-o, they're gone. This has happened three times and the last was the worst. I thought Doreen really liked me but last night she said, "Sorry it had to be you, Doug, but I had to make my 'ex' jealous so he'd come back. He's back now. I know you understand."

I don't understand but I don't think I'll try any more. Why me?—BORN TO BE A BACHELOR

Dear B. To Be A B.: I'm only guessing, but maybe you pick girls for their looks and popularity more than for their basic niceness—and "lasting" qualities. Such girls naturally sample a lot—they aren't ready to settle for one.

Why not play it their way for a while? I mean cool and hard-to-get. Date several girls casually but let 'em know they're "just friends." It keeps them from getting too sure of themselves—and you free to choose the right one when she comes along.—H.

Dear Helen: A guy I don't like asked me to go to the Senior Prom. It looks doubtful if anyone else will ask me as the fellow I'm wild about is taking another girl.

My girl friends say even a Delbert is better than staying home. Besides, I might be able to get the guy I like, if he sees me dressed up and dating.

I get the feeling I'm a last chance too. This Delbert thinks I'm a ding-a-ling, but it's the thing to go to the Senior Prom. Should I accept?—LAST CHANCE.

Dear Last: It doesn't seem honest: Dating a ding-a-ling so you can ring someone else's chimes. But if both you and the boy feel the same way, at least no one will be hurt, and who knows, it could be the start of a beautiful friendship. A Delbert and a ding-a-ling might have a lot in common.—H.

Dear Helen: During the holidays a couple of my friends and I decided we'd try to bring back the spirit of Christmas. We should have saved our breath! After watching mothers yank and scream at their children, people gouge each other at bargain counters, lose their tempers in the Christmas rush, we tried saying "Merry Christmas" with a big smile to everyone we passed on the street.

Honestly, we got the strangest stares! A lot of people thought we were up on dope, and others hurried by because they figured we were going to hit them for a donation. Only about one in ten took our wish as it was intended—to let them know Christmas really SHOULD be merry. The rest were nothing but suspicious.

Is it so odd, trying to be nice to people? I've noticed at other times that if a teen tries to be friendly with an unknown adult, he's closed down fast. Seems to me if our elders would stop thinking, "Don't trust anyone under 25," the kids would stop saying, "Don't trust anyone over 30."—PUT DOWN

Dear P.D.: Right!—H.

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — A pair of noble experiments designed, not only to bridge but to jump entirely over the generation gap came to a sad, quiet end Monday night, unloved and practically unsponsored.

David Steinberg, winding up things as host and star of ABC's "Music Scene" addressed himself to the nation's youth: "This show didn't have sex, this show didn't have violence, this show didn't have anything—and you still didn't watch it."

He was only kidding, of course.

"Music Scene" and "The New People," that followed it combined to make ABC's master scheme—90 minutes of TV entertainment that would chip away some of that big "Laugh-In" audience, attracting the young audience by playing the tunes, speaking their language.

"Music Scene" in particular was plotted to catch the fancy of the 13 to 23 crowd, but the plotting was done largely by over-30 TV professionals. The musical stars were mostly young performers who were unknown to square older world, and they sang the in-songs of the week or the month.

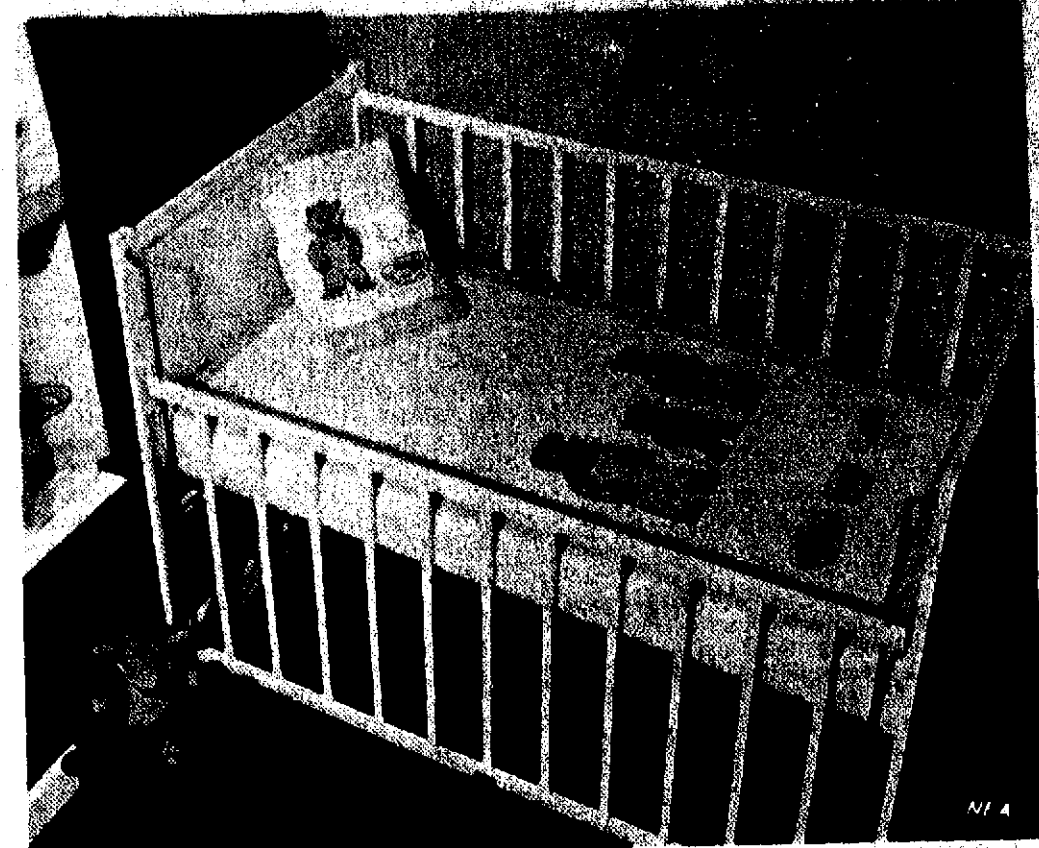

In the final program John Sebastian, one of the musicians, spoke lovingly of Woodstock, and Buffy Sainte-Marie sang, with strained emotion, a war protest song. Groucho Marx, the big guest star, seemed slightly uncomfortable and was treated with a sort of tolerant reverence as if he were a national monument.

"The New People" was a series of about a plane-load of young men and women stranded on a remote tropical island. It wound up with a story about a girl from a well-to-do family in love with the son of a migrant picker who was not too sure he wanted to return to the tough, unhappy life he had left. The group came close to being rescued, but at the last moment they found themselves still locked onto the island which was their small world.

What ABC apparently overlooked in the plan is that young people of the late high school and college ages are less interested in television than any other viewing group. They are its lightest watchers.

With "Music Scene" putting off the older viewers to a point where it started and ended at the bottom of the Nielsen list, a large number of viewers never even got around to sampling the show that followed it, which was unfortunate because it was not at all bad and often had an interesting point of view.

The third of ABC's departing shows, "The Survivors" at least tried to wind up the series gracefully. The challenge to the viewer was to penetrate the confusion of flashbacks in order to isolate the finish. At the very end Lana Turner and George Hamilton, playing warring sister and brother, kissed tenderly and made up and Lana's estranged husband, played by Kevin McCarthy, was revealed as being behind all the death and dishonesty that had filled the earlier 14 weeks.

Bobcats Face Competition in District

BY RALPH KOUTON
Star Sports Editor

Learning how to win and, most importantly, expecting to win against adversity, the Hope Bobcats face 4-AA Western Division competition beginning with home games against Camden Lincoln and Arkadelphia this weekend.

Actually, the Saturday night date with Arkadelphia was to be played there, but because of the Henderson-Ochsicht AIC game that evening, the site was switched to Jones Field Home yesterday by agreement of the coaches.

Of course, the big one is the 4-AA West opener here Friday against the Camden Lincoln Tigers.

Feelings should run high in that one, for Hope remembers a 104-46 loss to Lincoln here last winter, but the Tigers recall the 84-6 football beating suffered to the Bobcats in November.

Lincoln is the defending state champion, and Coach Tyree Webster returns All-State senior Donnie Davidson as a quick, hot-shooting 6-1 swingman. Also there are returnees Robert Guley, a junior All-District footballer, seniors Cleveland Murphy and Calvin Carroll, and juniors Bobby Seals and Robert Hall.

The Tigers' only loss was a 52-45 decision to Fairview in the finals of the Southern State Invitational at Magnolia last month. They have beaten such powers as Stamps, Ellis, Pine Bluff, Merrill, and Magnolia.

Arkadelphia last night lost a 47-46 squeaker to Little Rock McClellan in the finals of the Henderson Invitational, and of course the Badgers have the football loss to Hope to remember in preparing.

Action this week will include a junior boys game at 6:30 p.m. Friday night with Camden Lincoln, and the "B" squads have the opener on Saturday. Then on Thursday evening the junior high and 8th grade teams of Hope and Arkadelphia will meet at Jones Field House for games starting at 6:30.

Bobcat Coach John Ross surveyed an injury-free group yesterday afternoon for practice, though certainly the tough games with Magnolia and Snookover produced some soreness.

Having six consecutive home games (next week Malvern and Fairview are here) has to be an advantage for Hope in this early going with an 8-5 record at present. But momentum gained from these first big games means a lot later on down the line.

With 13 games now behind the Cats, the statistics of the team's leading scorers and average per game played in are given here in a mid-season summary.

Coffey Leaves Arkansas for Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Charles Coffey, defensive line coach at Arkansas the last four seasons, accepted Monday a position as an assistant to new Tennessee football Coach Bill Battle.

Coffey will become assistant athletic director and defensive coordinator for the Tennessee team.

He is a Tennessee graduate. "My major aim is still to be a head coach," Coffey said. "That's why it took so long for me to decide whether to stay at Arkansas or go to Tennessee. I wanted to be sure which place would give me the best opportunity to become a head coach in the future."

UCLA Walking Away With Cage Ranking

BY KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

While the rest of the Top Twenty teams play musical chairs with the numbers game, UCLA continues to walk away with the No. 1 ranking in college basketball.

Rolling along to their one-note victory samba, the Bruins were voted into the top spot again Monday by the Associated Press' nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Their image has changed. Low Alcindor's graceful figure no longer dances near the basket. What's the key to their success?

"We either win by one or 31," says Coach John Wooden, diplomatically leaving unsaid that the Bruins manage to win one way or the other.

But Wooden admits the Bruins' uncanny shooters don't hurt. If they win big of not, "in either case you have to look to our shooting," Wooden said.

Kentucky and South Carolina, the pride of the South, continued to hold onto the second and third spots in the poll. After that, you had to follow the bouncing ball to find out who's where.

St. Bonaventure bounced from fifth to fourth; New Mexico State moved up a place to fifth; Jacksonville stepped up a notch to sixth; North Carolina slipped three spots to seventh; Davidson held onto eighth, and Houston and Marquette moved up several places to ninth and 10th, respectively.

Rounding out the Top Twenty were, North Carolina State; Niagara; Columbia; Ohio; Penn and Washington, who were tied for 15th; Illinois; Louisville; Duke and Southern California.

UCLA is 10-0 this year, but two of the victories were very un-Bruin-like, compared to their last three national championship years.

The Bruins beat Princeton 76-75 earlier this season and just got by Oregon State 72-71 Saturday night.

"If we were shooting poorly in those games, it was our opponent's defense," says Wooden. "Generally speaking, you have to credit the defense."

Vikings Are Welcome By Home Crowd

BY MARTHA MALAN
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — "It wouldn't have been like this if they'd won."

The remark, by a Twin Cities International Airport policeman, seemed to be what everyone was thinking as some 400 persons welcomed the Minnesota Vikings home Monday.

The team, minus quarterback Joe Kapp and seven others, received a warm, but subdued, welcome on their return from New Orleans where the Kansas City Chiefs beat them 23-7 in the Super Bowl.

Kapp, who suffered torn muscles and ligaments in his left shoulder in the Super Bowl, flew to Los Angeles with his seven teammates who will play in Sunday's Pro Bowl. Kapp will not play in the game. He has been replaced by former teammate Bob Berry, now with the Atlanta Falcons.

Alcorn Comes From Behind for Victory

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Alcorn, behind by three points at halftime, overtook and defeated Arkansas AM&N 86-85 Monday night.

Alcorn went ahead to stay 85-84 on a three-point play with 39 seconds left.

Gerald Lockett had 19 points for AM&N and Larry Duckworth had 18.

Smith Takes No. 1 Spot in Tennis

NEW YORK (AP) — Stan Smith, the tall, blond better from Pasadena, Calif., has replaced Arthur Ashe as the top amateur tennis player in the nation, the United States Lawn Tennis Association announced Monday.

The 6-4, 180-pound Californian thus climbed from 14th place in 1965 to the No. 1 spot among United States amateurs. Smith, 23, was third last year.

Cliff Richey, of San Angelo, Tex., No. 4 a year ago, vaulted into the runnerup spot and Ashe, of Gum Springs, Va., dropped to third after poor showings in tournament play.

Clark Graebner of New York was fourth, followed by fifth-place Charles Pasarell of San Francisco, P.R.

Rounding out the USLTA's top ten were, Robert Lutz, Los Angeles; Thomas Edlefsen, Fort Walton Beach, Fla.; Roy Barth, San Diego, Calif.; Jim Osborne, Honolulu, Hawaii and Jim McManus, Berkeley, Calif.

Tips on Golf Technique

DAN SIKES, PLAYER "SWWG"*

THE HIPS IN THE GOLF SWING

At Tobago, we asked Dan Sikes to demonstrate the role the hips play in the golf swing.

"The movement of the hips is a very powerful one and must be fully and correctly accomplished by anyone aspiring to hit the ball for long distances.

"I position my hips in a semi-sitting position at address. This pushes my weight down towards my heels. As you can see I allow my hips to move away from the target as I go into the backswing. At the top of the backswing you can see that I have made a big deliberate turn, a full swing. On the downswing I rotate the hips towards the target and the weight begins shifting to the left side. As I reach impact I tuck my right elbow into my right side. My head and shoulders are as they should be behind the ball. The left side has turned away, allowing the hands to pass through the hitting area.

And as I reach the conclusion of the swing my hips as you can see are facing the target.

Northside Rated Best Cage Team

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Unbeaten Fort Smith Northside has strengthened its hold on the top spot in The Associated Press high school basketball poll.

The Grizzlies, who defeated Fayetteville and El Dorado last week, garnered 7 of the 12 first place votes cast by a panel of Arkansas sportswriters and sportscasters.

Last week, Northside, Fort Smith Southside, Little Rock Central and Searcy received support for the No. 1 spot with no team receiving more than three first place votes.

Searcy, unbeaten in 16 games, made the biggest advance, jumping from fifth to second. Searcy received three first place votes.

Little Rock Central received the other two first place votes and remained in third place.

Following Central is Southside, Pine Bluff, Camden Fairview, Jonesboro Westside, Little Rock McClellan, Little Rock Hall and Harrison in that order.

Southside dropped from second to fourth despite winning its only game last week. The Rebels have lost twice to Oklahoma teams.

Pine Bluff was beaten by Hall and dropped from fourth to fifth. Camden Fairview remains sixth and once-beaten Jonesboro Westside advanced from eighth to seventh.

Little Rock McClellan won three times last week but fell from seventh to eighth. Hall, unranked last week, jumped in to the No. 9 spot. Harrison remains tenth.

Notes From PGA Golf Tournament

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Notes from the PGA tournament trial:

The addition of the Kiwanis Open at Kiamasha Lake, N.Y., Sept. 24-27, pushes to five the number of golf tournaments this year which carry a price tag of $200,000 or up.

The others are the National Airlines at Miami, PGA-tournament Players Division four-ball at Latrobe, Pa., both at $200,000 the $250,000 Westchester Classic, and the $300,000 Dow Jones, Upper Montclair, N.J.

As usual, prize money for the Masters and U.S. Open has not yet been announced, but both of those also are expected to top $200,000. In addition, the World Series of Golf offers $50,000 to the winner, the Alcan, in Dublin, Ireland this year, gives the winner $55,000 and a newly announced tournament in London is worth $60,000 to the champ.

Arnold Palmer, who has played the last seven spots on the tour, is skipping the Phoenix Open this week. "It's not that I'm tired or anything," Palmer said, "I just have some business in Hawaii."

A large number of non-exempt players are somewhat annoyed that the $150,000 Citrus, in Orlando, Fla., March 5-8, has been changed from an open to an invitational event. That cuts the field back from 144 to about 100, with the overflow shunted into a satellite event.

The Masters has a point system, which it has used for years, to determine certain players—the number has not yet been announced—who will be invited to the tour to compete in the prestigious event. Lee Elder ranked sixth on that list through the end of 1969. A Negro has never played in the Augusta, Ga., Classic.

A new system, expected to go into effect next month, should

Transplants From North Aid Kentucky

By HAL BOCK

The Rebel Railroad that imports basketball talent from North to South, stops at Lexington, Ky., too.

Yankee transplants, popularized first at North Carolina and now at South Carolina by Coach Frank McGuire, are paying handsome dividends for Kentucky this season.

Both South Carolina, ranked third in The Associated Press' poll, and Kentucky, the No. 2 team, scored victories Monday night in a slugged-down schedule of college basketball with many teams occupied by final exams.

SC walloped Virginia 63-42 while Kentucky had a shakier time, just getting past fired-up Georgia 72-71. In both games, Dixie imports played important roles.

Tom Owens, one of nine South Carolina players from the New York metropolitan area, led the Gamecocks with 18 points. SC solved Virginia's slow-down tactics quickly and won easily, taking advantage of its over-all height advantage to dominate the boards.

Kentucky had a tougher time against Georgia. The Wildcats needed seven points in the last four minutes by Mike Pratt to hold off the Bulldogs. Pratt, who hails from that famous citadel of the South, Dayton, Ohio, dropped in the decisive free throw with six seconds left.

The Wildcats, now 12-0, got 32 points from Dan Issel, the nation's No. 3 scorer, who comes from another northern outpost, Batavia, Ill.

Lanny Taylor led Georgia with 25 points and Bob Lleniad added 17 for Georgia, now 5-6.

The loss was the first in Southeastern Conference play for the Bulldogs and it enabled Kentucky, now 4-0 in the SEC, to take over the conference lead.

In the East, Harvard topped MIT 77-70, Bucknell topped Delaware 83-81 and Rhode Island took Vermont 78-66. In the South, Auburn whipped Alabama 86-77, Maryland defeated Clemson 75-68, Florida edged Tennessee 57-56 in overtime, and Rice beat Tulane 83-80.

In the Midwest, Creighton whipped Colorado 65-60, Idaho State topped Idaho 79-75; in the Southwest, Oklahoma topped Missouri 52-48 and Xavier, Ohio, topped Texas Christian 80-76, and in the Far West, Weber State ran over Gonzaga 120-72, California routed Washington 84-64, Seattle topped Denver 70-37 and Washington State trimmed Stanford 72-62.

Tears, Cheers at Texas Grid Dinner

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The 1969-70 Texas football dinner Monday night had tears and cheers and a single act of courage that dramatically displayed those intangibles of spirit and pride that made the Longhorns national champions.

Safety Freddie Steinmark, whose cancerous left leg was removed a month ago, made a vow from Houston's M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute that he would walk on the stage and receive his letter without the aid of crutches.

Steinmark fulfilled that promise to the roars of 5,000 persons into jammed Municipal Auditorium.

It was like Randy Peschel had said in the opening prayer . . . "Dear God, we ask that we all be so brave as Freddie Steinmark."

Steinmark's walk on an artificial limb with the aid of an aluminum cane was the emotional high point of a three-hour event that saw some people paying $1.50 just to sit in the balcony and watch.

Former President and Mrs. Lyndon Johnson were honored guests. Mrs. Johnson, a Texas graduate, proudly presented the Longhorns The Associated Press 1969 national championship trophy—but she did it without a word because she had lost her voice cheering the arrival of a new granddaughter Sunday.

The Longhorns received enough treasures to sink a small ship, also including national championship awards from the Football Writers Association, United Press International and the National Football Foundation.

Each player received a 10-ounce silver medallion, depicting quarterback James Street's 42-yard touchdown run against Arkansas in a 15-14 victory that put the Longhorns into the Cotton Bowl, where they defeated Notre Dame 21-17.

Coach Darrell Royal accepted a bronze figure of Street tossing the 44-yard bomb to Peschel on a fourth-and-three gamble that set up Texas' winning touchdown against Arkansas.

Master of ceremonies Cactus Pryor said, "We appreciate President Nixon making Texas No. 1 and Pennsylvania Democratic. The score tonight is Texas 1, Penn State 2."

Penn State, which hasn't lost in its last 30 games, finished second in the national poll after the bowls and claims the No. 1 spot.

No Texas highlight was left unshown on a giant screen. A five-minute clip of the Longhorn band in action was flashed on for openers.

There were laughs at a clip showing Texas boobies—fumbles, interceptions and other misplays.

"Are you sure we're still No. 1?" joked Pryor.

Street, of course, hogged most of the honors, winning the most valuable player and the leadership awards.

But he said, "The team's the thing down here, not any one individual. It's like (center) Forrest Wiegand says, 'Nothing is gonna start unless I snap the ball.'"

Chicago Wins On Peterson's Foul Shots

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
To put together a winning streak a team has to have something in reserve. The Chicago Bulls had Loy Petersen.

Petersen, a substitute guard, came off the bench in the final minute Monday night to make four foul shots as the Bulls edged the Philadelphia 76ers 117-113 for their fourth straight National Basketball Association victory.

Clem Haskins scored 28 points and Bob Love and Chet Walker 24 each for Chicago. Darrell Imhoff notched 21 and Hal Greer 20 for Philadelphia.

In other NBA action Detroit topped Atlanta 113-100 at Memphis, Tenn., and New York trounced Phoenix 130-114 at Salt Lake City, Utah. There were no games in the American Basketball Association.

Erwin Mueller tossed in 13 points in the last five minutes in leading Detroit past Atlanta. Dave Bing topped Detroit with 22 points, Erwin Mueller got 21 and Otto Moore and Jimmy Walker 20 apiece for Detroit. Bill Bridges scored 23 for Atlanta.

Bill Bradley, with 24 points, and Dick Barnett and Walt Frazier, with 23 each, led New York's blasting of Phoenix. Connie Hawkins and Dick Van Arsdale poured in 26 points apiece for Phoenix.

The Knicks, who lead the Eastern Division by six games, bolted to a 67-57 halftime bulge and maintained the margin after the intermission.

Astrodome Game Set for Saturday

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Football League's East and West all-stars begin practice today for Saturday's game in the Astrodome.

It will be the last all-star contest in the name of the AFL, which has merged with the National Football League and henceforth will be known as the American Conference of the NFL.

The Super Bowl champion Kansas City Chiefs, the Oakland Raiders and the New York Jets each will have nine players in the all-star game. The Houston Oilers will have eight.

George Wilson of the Miami Dolphins will coach the East squad and Lou Saban of the Denver Broncos will coach the West.

Starting quarterbacks have not been named. Speculation centered on John Hadl of San Diego for the West and Mike Taliaferro of Boston for the East.

Joe Namath of the New York Jets and Darrel Lamonica of Oakland will not play. They were named by the 10 AFL coaches for automatic starting berths but both have withdrawn, Namath because of knee problems and Lamonica because of a shoulder injury.

Driving or Not, Those Snow Snorters Pose Problems

By CARLTON SMITH and RICHARD PUTNAM PRATT

A snowmobile, if you haven't yet encountered one, is a cross between a motorcycle, a miniature sleigh mounted on skis and a light tank. Propelled by tank-type treads, it goes snarling across the countryside—up hill and down dale, through the woods, across pastures or back yards—at motorcycle-like speeds.

If you live in snow country, or vacation there, chances are good that the snowmobile will somehow touch your life. The little bombs have been multiplying at a rate that makes rabbits look reticent, and neither licensing authorities nor insurance carriers are quite sure what to do about them. They can be a bundle of fun and, if you're aware of some of the problems, a potential hazard to family finances.

You needn't be an owner or operator to share in the problems. In a property owners' "are complaining increasingly of trespass, noise and broken fences," the Journal of American Insurance reports, and owners find that resort cabins are "distressingly easy prey to snowmobile-mounted looters."

There is also the tendency for snowmobiles to come zooming out of the fencerows and across roads and highways, like bounding deer, with resultant injuries, claims and liabilities, and need for good insurance coverage.

The National Safety Council says that collision with autos and breaking through ice are the two most serious hazards in snowmobile operation.

Ice breakthroughs were identified as the leading killer in a study of a sample of serious snowmobile accidents made last winter by a member company of the American Mutual Insurance Alliance. Nearly 20 per cent of the cases studied involved a death from this cause. For all accidents and injuries, however, the leading cause was collision with road obstacles: fences, cables, ditches, trees, parked vehicles, etc.

If you own or operate a snowmobile, it's obvious that you need good insurance coverage. There's a quarter-million-dollar damage suit on file at present, in California, brought by a husband whose wife was injured in a snowmobile accident. Insurance carriers regard the contraption variously as (a) a road vehicle to be classed with automobiles, (b) more like a boat than anything else, (c) a piece of yard equipment, or (d) a recreational vehicle. Snowmobiles are therefore covered ad lib (extemporaneously), says the insurance journal, under homeowner, automobile or inland marine policies.

Licensing and other regulations also tend to be ad lib at present. In a growing number of states, you need a driver's license to cross a road or highway in a snowmobile. At least one town prohibits by ordinance the operation of the snarling snow bugs after 10 p.m., and one Canadian province requires registration numbers to be cut into snowmobile treads, for identification of trespassers and damagers of private or public property.

Their many uses as utility and patrol vehicles, and their exploding popularity in recreational use seem to insure that snowmobiles are here to stay. Better keep in mind the problems, whether you're going to be a passive or active participant in snowmobiling.

The authors are unable to answer personally individual questions. Questions of general interest will be answered when possible in future columns.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Menopause's Onset Occurs Gradually

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—How can a woman know when the menopause starts and when it is completed?

A—The onset of the change, usually between the ages 45 and 50, is gradual. The interval between menstrual periods becomes longer and the periods themselves are of shorter duration. It is complete when there are no more periods.

Q—I am going through the change and my doctor has prescribed Premarin. What does this drug do? Are there any side effects?

A—By replacing the female hormones no longer produced by the ovaries, this drug relieves menopausal symptoms. When taken daily for three weeks, then discontinued the one week, there should be no side effects. Too large a dosage may cause soreness of the breasts and pelvic discomfort.

Q—What is surgical menopause? What effect would it have on the natural aging process?

A—Surgical removal of the uterus, ovaries or both during the child-bearing period brings on a sudden and complete menopause. This does not affect the aging process, even if you don't take any female hormones.

Q—I have heard that there is a test that tells whether a woman has started her change of life and whether it is complete. Is this true?

A—A chemical test that determines the amount of estrogen in your blood is an index of ovarian activity and thus, of the stage of your menopause.

Q—What would cause a woman, 76, to have hot flashes and sweats? What can I do for them?

A—Although these symptoms usually start with the onset of the menopause, they often persist long after it is complete. They are caused by instability of the nervous control of the blood vessels of the skin and are aggravated by hot weather, hot baths, alcohol, spicy foods, excessive coffee drinking and nervous excitement. They are helped by avoiding these precipitating factors and keeping your weight within the normal range. Female hormones, vitamin E or a short course of tranquilizer may also be helpful.

Q—I have been told that during and after the menopause a woman should not have sexual relations, as it will cause cancer. Is this true?

A—No. Someone is playing a cruel joke on you.

The Professor was holding forth on the subject of a little knowledge being a dangerous thing.

As it the custom with most bridge stories, the Professor was the hero sitting South. East was a fairly good player and an avid reader of bridge books. Not that we disapprove of reading bridge books. We read every one that comes out but so does the Professor.

Anyway, East cashed a couple of hearts and the ace of clubs. At this point most bridge players would lead a third heart. South would ruff with the nine and West would overruff with the 10. South would be one down before ever getting the lead and would still have the problem of the king of trumps.

East had not considered the possibility that his partner might hold the 10 of trumps. All East knew was that if he did lead that third heart and South did hold the 10 and did ruff with it, then West's failure to overruff would locate the king in the East hand.

South would have no choice but to play a trump to dummy's ace and his blank king would fall.

Anyway, East led a second club. The Professor sitting South won with his king and proceeded to lead a trump to dummy's ace. Down came the king with a crash, and the rubber was over.

Thus to finish in the Professor's own words: "How could East really imagine that I wouldn't know just why he didn't lead a third heart?"

Plain Carelessness Is Highway's Leading Killer

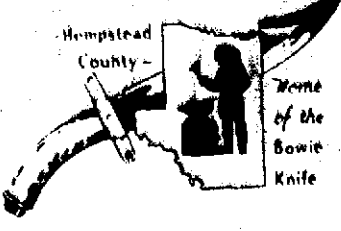

Photos on the page are grisley reminders of death on the highways, they are on display at the Arkansas State Police Station east of Hope and everyone is invited to come by and see what one extra drink, one second of Carelessness or just a little bit of excessive speed can bring about.

In the above photos, one to six persons lost their lives in each crash. We can blame it on the Interstate traffic, road conditions or anything we like, but the fact is, safety is the responsibility of the driving public — You and I.

All Photos are of recent local accidents and no attempt is made to identify any one accident.

Too Bad They Can't Go
All The Way

Disgustingly but not surprisingly, at the University of California at Berkeley, 500 people marched down the street last week and held memorial services for the late Communist dictator of North Vietnam, Ho Chi Minh. They held no memorial for the Americans and others he has killed.

It is unfortunate that this expression of choice cannot be fulfilled by permitting the Ho-lovers to live permanently under the regime he created and which they champion rather than under the one that gives them the freedom to foul it. — Chattanooga (Tenn.) News-Free Press

Now Hear This . . . If You Can
Could it be that the U.S. Army has no faith in doctors? In the last six years, it has received warnings from the surgeon general's office, hearing experts at Walter Reed Army Hospital and an Army Aero-Medical Research Unit that the hearing of thousands of men is impaired yearly for lack of protection against noise made by tanks, artillery, helicopters and on firing ranges.

The suggested remedy is a pair of individually fitted earplugs for the soldiers, ear muffs for tanks, and improved helmets, as used by the Navy, for helicopter pilots. The Army has remained silent on the matter, except for one military physician who said that $6 was too much to pay for ear protectors. — Kannapolis (N.C.) Independent

Trashy Houses
The Japanese may have solved the problem of garbage disposal. They're building houses with the stuff. They squeeze it so hard that they end up with an oxygen-less, germ-free building block so tightly bonded that you can't tell what it's made of.

The process hasn't reached the states yet. When it does, decorators will certainly go the Japs one better with names like Lettuce Alone or Coffee Grounds for the houses themselves—and such decor as garbage-can umbrella receptacles, bread-wrapped furniture covers and milk-carton mailboxes. — Dallas (Tex.) Morning News.

Not Yet The Revolution

An important part of the radical song and dance as performed by the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) is the belief that considerable discontent exists among America's factory workers. So a few hundred SDSers, with an eye on forming a worker-student alliance, have spent the summer working in the factories.

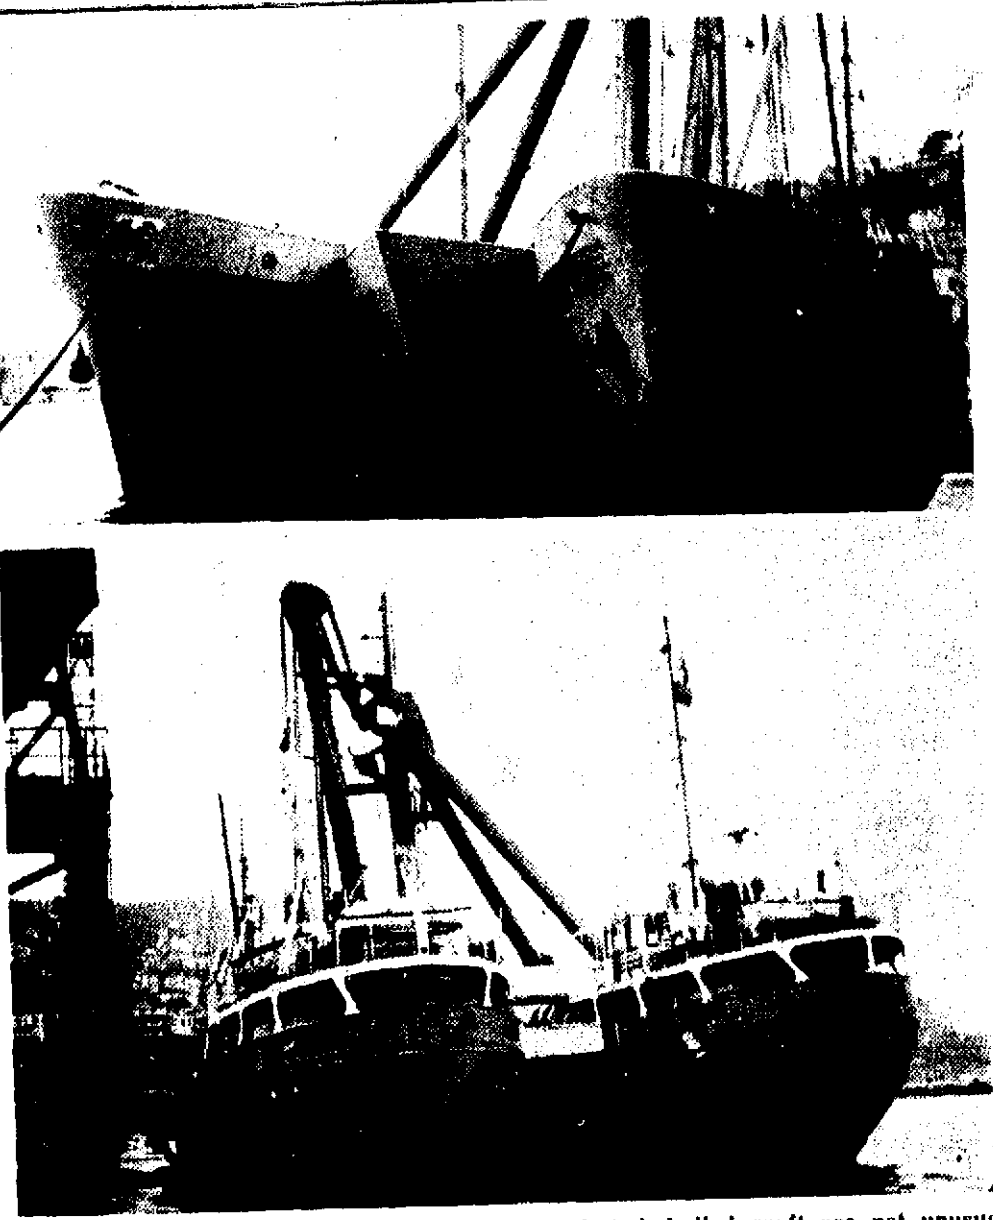

Although the students sacrificed their long hair, beards and bell-bottoms for the Revolution, the Los Angeles Times reports that their rhetoric was wasted on the workers. However, some of the students' experiences are worth sharing. One student working in a furniture factory confessed that by the time he got home at night, he was so tired that he read Playboy instead of Karl Marx.

Another telling in a Boston meat cutting factory discovered that workers preferred to discuss the previous night's Red Sox game rather than overthrow of "their bloodsucking Capitalistic boss."

And finally a Wellesley radical, realizing her job left her with too little time to discuss the seemingly practical expedient of dating fellow workers, she could have time to explain the elements of radicalism. She found that her struggles by moonlight, however, were more romantic than revolutionary. — Winston-Salem, N.C. Journal

U.S. Attorney to Resign Position

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Clint Huey, 49, chief assistant U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Arkansas, said Monday he was resigning effective Jan. 23 to go into private practice. Huey said he would return to private practice at Warren, where he was in practice 13 years before joining the U.S. attorney's staff in June 1968.

A HULL OF A DIFFERENT DESIGN. Though twin-hulled craft are not unusual among pleasure boats, the system is rarely used for merchant ships. This is the Liberian freighter Gloria Siberum, seen fore and aft, which has a double deck for heavy freight. The vessel is propelled by two engines, one in each hull.

Man Killed In Auto Accident Monday Night

Walter Lee McCoy, 51, of Hope, was killed Monday night around 7:30 p.m. when he pulled out on Hwy. 29 South and was struck by a tractor-trailer truck driven by John W. Kimpel of Francisville, Ind. McCoy was taken to a local hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Trooper Wallace Martin of the State Police investigated and said no charges were filed.

Eisele Is Nominated for Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — G. Thomas Eisele, a Little Rock lawyer, was nominated Monday by President Nixon to become U.S. District Court judge for the Eastern District of Arkansas.

Eisele would succeed the late Judge Gordon E. Young. The 46-year-old Eisele, a native of Hot Springs, is a former legal adviser to Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller. He resigned the position to devote more time to his law practice and to serve as a delegate to the Arkansas Constitutional Convention.

Eisele's nomination had been expected. Rockefeller was reported to have recommended the nomination.

Says News Media Contributes to Nation's Violence

By JOSEPH E. MOHRBAT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A study prepared for the National Violence Commission contends the news media contributes to violence in America by failing to report thoroughly on the social problems that lead to confrontations.

Professor Believes Militant Students About Out of Steam

By PAUL H. FINCH
Associated Press Writer
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Chancellor Roger W. Heyns of the University of California's Berkeley complex, who has had his share of campus confrontations, says the student militants across the land seem to be running out of steam.

A long series of disorders at Berkeley reached a climax last May in a row over the use of university land as a "People's Park." It left one dead, one blinded and hundreds injured, tear-gassed or in jail.

"A lot of people have been waiting for the other shoe to drop here," Heyns said Monday in an interview. "Even if it does, it won't be a very big shoe."

"Combat fatigue is certainly part of the theory to explain this peace, but there is also a general sense that the tactics of confrontation are counter-productive, and that positive things have happened with lots of people working very hard and constructively."

"There is keen awareness that student disruption does invite external intervention which has corrosive effects," Heyns added that the radical left student movement was weakened by splits in its ranks. "I think students are growing more sophisticated and that the university administration is more sensitive to students," he said.

Heyns denied that he plans to resign, a persistent rumor since he left on a recent three-month leave. Heyns, 52, took his present post four years ago after serving as vice president at the University of Michigan.

Heyns said university president-elect across the nation are vacant because of growing pressures from both the conservatives and radicals. "There is a constant need for the university administrator to define the middle position. The threats to inquiry are real and the decision the administrator makes will not always be popular," he said.

Heyns said he was optimistic, however, about the future of higher education. "The Congress, the legislature and President Nixon have all indicated a willingness to let the institutions solve their own problems," he said.

Heyns said Berkeley faculty morale was higher now and "through all of the disruptions during the past five years we have gone on with achievements in the continuance of instruction." He added: "The Berkeley campus had to turn away 2,700 students this quarter and a nice irony was that I received telephone calls from legislators asking help in entering their offices, nephews and children. These are the same legislators who said they would never send their children to Berkeley."

Lebanon's Premier Renews Pact

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Lebanon's premier renewed his government's commitment to its agreement with the Palestinian guerrillas Monday night and announced plans to strengthen defenses along the Israeli border.

After a five-hour Cabinet meeting led by President Charles Helou, Premier Rashid Karami sought to reassure 10 guerrilla groups which threatened to renew their war against the Lebanese government unless it lifted new restrictions on their operations.

Karami reiterated his government's commitment to the Cairo agreement that ended bloody clashes between guerrillas and the Lebanese army last October.

After recent Israeli attacks on southern Lebanese villages in retaliation for guerrilla raids from Lebanon, the Lebanese government replaced the army chief who negotiated the Cairo agreement and announced the guerrillas had agreed to restrict their activities. But the guerrillas repudiated the restrictions and charged they violated the agreement.

Karami announced that the government would build shelters and fortifications along the Lebanon-Israel border and would train and arm villagers in the area to defend themselves. He said the army also would get more weapons and equipment.

In London, diplomats said the Soviet Union has rejected eight of 10 major American proposals for an Egyptian-Israeli settlement. Among other things, the Russians withdrew their previous endorsement of a U.S. proposal for indirect peace talks using the so-called "Rhodes formula," with Arab and Israeli delegates in the same place but negotiating through a third party.

The diplomats in London said the Russians delivered a note to Secretary of State William P. Rogers on Dec. 23 giving a point-by-point criticism of the most recent U.S. plan for the Middle East. The plan, submitted to Moscow Oct. 28, was rejected by Israel as an appeasement of the Arabs. But Moscow said the plan was "of a one-sided pro-Israeli nature."

In their criticisms, the Russians said there must be no tampering with Egyptian sovereignty.

December Was Deadly One in Hope District

The monthly statistical review of traffic accidents for Southwest Arkansas during the month of December was released today by Captain Milton Mosler, commander of the Hope district of the Arkansas State Police.

Captain Mosler said 12 persons were killed in traffic accidents during December in the Hope district, which is comprised of 12 counties. According to the report, Hempstead County was the deadliest, recording 4 traffic deaths, followed by Nevada County with 3 killed. Sevier County recorded 2 deaths, and Clark, Columbia and Lafayette Counties recorded one death each. He said Howard, Little River, Miller, Montgomery, Pike and Polk counties recorded no traffic deaths during December.

Mosler said troopers investigated 122 traffic accidents and reported speed as the leading cause of the accidents. He said 25 accidents were alcohol-related. Congress Chilled by Report of Pollution for Electrical Power

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has been given a chilling account of potential disaster from air and water pollution if conventional methods are used to satisfy the nation's growing hunger for electrical power.

The testimony, compiled by the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, is expected to bolster the committee's position that nuclear power, despite drawbacks, is the nation's best bet for the least pollution in meeting future energy needs.

Witness after witness told the committee: —America's atmosphere already is fouled by choking clouds of sulphur spewed into the air by coal- and oil-fired generating plants.

—Rivers, lakes, even the sea — none are immune from the life-killing effects of thermal pollution resulting from discharge of heated liquids into the water by steam and nuclear generators.

—Even the power dams once believed to be the cleanest of all instruments for producing electricity now are believed to damage the water that spills over them by raising its nitrogen content to levels incompatible with aquatic life.

The testimony was presented at hearings late last year and released by the committee today. A second series of hearings is scheduled later this month.

The testimony came as scientists and conservationists raise more and more objections to side effects of electrical generation. Government and private experts predict U.S. demands for electricity will nearly triple by 1990, and double once again by the year 2000.

"Attacks are being made on all types of electric generating plants by environmentalists," acknowledged Rep. Chet Holifield.

Rapid Buildup in Enemy Infiltration

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Official sources reported today that the North Vietnamese are strengthening their infiltration routes and continuing a rapid buildup in the Mekong Delta of South Vietnam.

In the war, the U.S. Command announced that three light observation helicopters were shot down Monday in scattered parts of the country. One crewman was wounded.

Headquarters reported 85 enemy troops killed in two battles in rolling foothills below Da Nang and in rice paddies south of Saigon. American losses were put at two killed and 17 wounded.

Sources said North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire ranging from 37mm to 100mm had increased by about 30 per cent during 1969 against American bombers pounding the enemy supply network in eastern Laos. Earlier this week, the presence of North Vietnamese surface-to-air missiles in Laos was disclosed.

It could not be learned immediately how many anti-aircraft batteries there are in Laos or whether there has been an increase in the number of American bombers shot down.

Sources said North Vietnamese truck traffic moving through Laos toward South Vietnam had increased by 10 times since last October when the monsoons ended. Between 12,000 and 15,000 truck sightings were reported along the Ho Chi Minh Trail last month, they said.

They said there are indications the Communist Command is preparing to give the go-ahead to "do something. How big and when, we don't know."

One source said there had been no appreciable movement toward population centers detected yet. If the enemy does launch an offensive, the source said, it is expected he will rely mostly on rocket, mortar and sapper attacks to minimize his own casualties.

The source said that in the delta region of South Vietnam, the wealthiest and most populous area in the country, "the enemy threat has increased significantly since last May because of the influx of organized North Vietnamese units."

He said that last May, a few months before the withdrawal of American infantrymen from the
